

Some bankers have suggested that companies be allowed to make unsolicited telephone calls to former customers up to eighteen months after cancellation of services. No, thank you. The state of Wisconsin has had a "no call" list for just over two years--a true service to Wisconsin citizens. The FCC should be do all possible to help make such "no call" lists more--not less--effective by extending state "no call" lists to prohibit all forms of solicitation.